Thanks a lot. This is Rebecca from Tweyambe Emergency services. Is it possible for the HC IIIs and IVs to have the ant shock garments? In most cases we are given to transfer Pts from those facilities with PPH and you find that what the facility has done is administer Oxytocin and others do not even have it. But the pt continues to bleed yet on reaching the facility handing over becomes a problem.

in trauma, actually the walking people are the dead ones

those patients who got into accidents and come walking to our EDs giving reports how accident happened usually are the people to have continuous monitoring,

They can get tension pneumothorax

intra bleeding etc

16:03:25 From Winnie Mdundo to Everyone:

This second case we face during most night shifts in Tanzania, even in Dar es Salaam, what we are currently doing is education for the community that they should bring the victim

as soon as the accident occurs even the police can come to hospital to see the victim while care is provided and recently we have been able to get better outcomes for severely injured patients😊

16:04:50 From EDDY CANTONG to Everyone:

Thank you Tanzania ....

16:05:03 From Ayikobua Emmanuel to Everyone:

This has been a challenging case, the few team on ground did what they could in their power, no MO on ground, no surgeon on ground, no anaesthetics on ground, no blood giving set, who knows there was also no fluid giving set.....More efforts have been put to audit maternal related death cases and paying little attention to mortalities due to other causes such as trauma where lessons like this can be learnt and gaps addressed with refresher trainings, this will improve us all... otherwise gaps are noticeable. this pt was too sick en surely deserved a highly proactive and technical teamwork. prognosis was bad anyways given resource limitations and technical expertise.

16:06:51 From CHRISTOPHER WAGOBERA to Everyone:

16:07:22 From Jackie Oloya to Everyone:

There is a general problem that I observed while in Uganda - emergency response and urgency to stabilise and save life. May be the MoH should do a regular refresher training for Healthcare workers especially those in HCII & IIIs

I think this case points to the fact that Emergency care is a 24/7/365 profession, so we must ensure our health systems are ready to provide even basic emergency care at all times. This includes well trained staff, proper equipment, and a good referral system. Let us keep striving to improve so as to better care for our patients.

16:15:13 From Judith Nanyonjo to Everyone:

16:19:14 From Nangobi Phoebe to Everyone:

Thanks Dr Anena.Areas of improvement

1. Have a ready emergency tray
- 2.Check emergency trays at all shifts.
3. Call for help immediately
4. Drs respond to calls night duties stress when you call for help and no help is got.
5. Form emergency teams.
- 6 . Always support medical interns.

Thanks .
